Type I 'Profile—Cross fleury' type

Obverse

Reverse

Bust to l, crowned and diademed In front, sceptre botonne Around, beginning in front of bust, inscription divided by bust all in beaded circle

Cross fleury In centre, annulet, sometimes enclosing a pellet Around, inscription between two beaded circles

Size 7-8 inch

Hawkins, 233 Carlyon Britton I

Pl I 1-III 10

Notes and varieties

On some coins of this type a very fine inner circle is visible on the obverse (e.g. p 2, no 4 and Pl I 4) this does not constitute part of the design but was drawn by the engraver to guide him in punching the inscription, it was very shallow, and was presumably removed in most cases when the surface of the die was polished Similarly, the pellet which is often seen in the centre of this and other reverse types probably marks the hole made in the centre of the die by the foot of the compasses with which these circles were drawn

The following varieties of the obverse type occur

Bust to r (Pl II 9, P W P Carlyon Britton sale 1913, lot 677)

Sceptre omitted nos 8, 23, 29 (Pl I 7, II. 1, 7)

Inscription beginning above the king's head nos 2, 66, 69 (Pl I 2, III 9), also on Mule I x II (Pl III 15, R C Lockett coll)

Pellet in field below king's chin, no 5 (Pl I 5)

Three stalked pellets as central ornament of crown no 10

Of the reverse type the following

Inner circle plain passim (Pl I 1, &c.)

The following coins are of unusually rough work

Bristol, no 3 (Pl I 3)

Winchester coins of this type are mostly rough and their inscriptions blundered, notably nos 53-8 (Pl III 3, 4, 5)

York no 70 (Pl III 10)

3. H. O. Curzon, 1916, 4. Col. Durrant sale, 1847, lot 104 Brit. Num. Journ., vol. vi, p. 161 and Pl. XIII. 2, 3. On both these coins the letter O of the moneyer's name resembles D, and R is also indistinct; the reading of the name as CEORL is made probable by its occurrence on Bristol coins of other types in this and the two preceding reigns; the appearance of the inscriptions suggests that either the dies were tampered with (cf. nos. 109-111) or another name was erased from these dies before that of Ceorl was engraved on them.

*ÆGELPINEONLIINOIE (Pl IV. 6) seems to have been struck from OIDE; both these coins are of rather rough work. Their original attribution to Thetford was due to a reading of D as *D; I think that on both coins it is certainly D, and I have tentatively attributed them to the London mint on account of the London coins of type IV of the same moneyer (cf. p. 49, no. 254), and have assumed an ellipse similar to that on the 'Fax' coins of London (Godwine), and Winchester Spræceline. 142 Presented by Mr. A. Davies — from York find, 1845 (ERVN ON TAMPA). A fine inner circle is visible on the obverse of this coin running right round through the king's neck. See p. 10 and p. 1, note on type I.

143 E. Hawkins — from York find, 1845.

144-6 On these three coins the cross is omitted at the beginning of the reverse legend. On no 144 the first letter of the mint is blundered, the engraver having punched a crossed upright followed by an upright (X|) instead of a crossed upright followed by a curve (X) to represent the letter D. On nos 145 and 146 the same blunder occurs, but is preceded by the letter D, perhaps the engraver was using one of these blundered dies for a model and attempted to correct the error by the insertion of D, possibly mistaking the blundered letter for H. ## Type III. 'Canopy' type.

Obverse.

Bust facing, crowned and diademed, within porch (or canopy?) of two columns supporting triangular pediment. Beside base of each column a pellet. Robe fastened by trefoil brooch on king's r. shoulder. Around, inscription divided by bust; all in beaded circle.

Reverse.

Double quadrilateral figure with incurved sides, fleury at the angles, placed lozengewise. In centre, annulet, sometimes enclosing a small pellet. Around, inscription between plain inner and beaded outer circle.

Size: .7-8 inch.

Hawkins, 236; Carlyon-Britton III.

PL VII. 1-VIII. 10.

The following varieties of the obverse type occur:—

Small arch in pediment, nos. 182, 186, 188, 193, 196, 199, 204, 208, 212, 223 (PL VII. 2, 5, 6, 11, 15; VIII. 2).

Type IV. 'Two Sceptres' type.

Obverse.

Bust facing, crowned and diademed.
To l. sceptre patté, to r. sceptre botonné.
Pellet-brooch on king's r. shoulder.
Around, inscription between plain inner and beaded outer circle, commencing above king's head.

Reverse.

Cross fleury over saltire botonné. In centre, annulet. Around, inscription between plain inner and beaded outer circle.

Size: .7--8 inch.

Hawkins, 237; Carlyon-Britton IV.

PL VIII. 12—X. 16.

The following varieties of the obverse type occur:

Brooch of trefoil of pellets instead of single pellet on king's r. shoulder, nos. 243, 256, 265, 282 (PL IX. 15).

Pellet omitted on king's r. shoulder, nos. 249, 250, 251, 263, 271, 290
(PL IX. 6; X. 3).

Inner circle beaded, passim (PL VIII. 14, &c.).

Of the reverse type the following:

Inner circle beaded, passim (PL IX. 9, &c.).

The coins of the Lincoln, Stamford, and York mints are all of very rough work, and all similar in style. This has been thought to show the existence of local centres of die-engraving, but it may equally well, perhaps better, mark a topographical distribution of work to die-cutters at London (where all dies are supposed to have been made). See Introduction.

Type VIII. 'Paxs' type.

Obverse.

Bust facing, crowned and diademed. To r., sceptre patté with shaft fleured, held in r. hand. On king's r. shoulder, trefoil of pellets; on king's l. shoulder, a pellet. Around, inscription, divided by bust, between plain inner and beaded outer circle.

Reverse.

Cross patté. In angles, the letters PAXS each enclosed in a circle. Around, inscription between plain inner and beaded outer circle.

Size: .7-8 inch.

Hawkins, 241; Carlyon-Britton VIII.

PL. XVIII-XXVII.

The crowns on these coins are of three different forms:

Blocks showing the form used are added to the descriptions of the coins.

The second form occurs with the top bar omitted, nos. 659, 671 (PL. XX. 6).

The third form occurs with an additional row of pellets, nos. 934, 937, 939 (PL. XXIV. 13).

The various positions of the letters PAXS are also indicated by blocks in the text.

The following varieties of the shoulder ornaments occur:

Annulet on king's r. shoulder (PL. XVIII. 10, &c.).

Two pellets on king's r. shoulder (PL. XXIII. 1; XXVII. 3).

One pellet on king's r. shoulder (PL. XXVI. 9).

Annulet (or inverted crescent) on king's l. shoulder (PL. XX. 5, 7, &c.).

No ornament on king's l. shoulder (PL. XVIII. 1, &c.).

No ornament on either shoulder (PL. XVIII. 3, &c.).

Other varieties of the obverse type are the following:

Pellet in field to l., no. 653 (PL. XX. 1).

Pellets omitted at ends of diadem each side of head, no. 511 (PL. XVIII. 6).

Beaded instead of plain line of drapery round king's neck, passim (PL. XVIII. 15, &c.).

Inner circle omitted, nos. 785, 786 (PL. XXII. 5).

The reverse type varies in the position of the letters in the angles of the cross; the various positions are marked by blocks in the text.

The coins attributed to Cradiff and St David's are of very rough work, similar in style to each other, one coin of Shrewsbury, no 938, is from dies of rough work of which the obverse is also used to strike a St David's coin, no 883 similar in style to the coins of St. Davids (883-90). See Introduction. The reverse inscription of no. 584 looks like a combination of the names Ælfi or Ælfiw and Turri with omission of 'On' before the mint-name; possibly this may be the Turri of the St. Davids coinage working in conjunction with the moneyer whose name appears on no. 582.

STEPHEN

1135-1154 (coinage continuing till 1156 or 8?)

Type I. 'Watford' type.

Obverse.

Bust to r., crowned and diademed, holding in r. hand sceptre in front of face. Around, inscription divided by bust between two beaded circles.

Reverse.

Cross moline, the claws joined so as to make an eight-foil, in each angle a fleur-de-lys springing from the junction of two claws, an annulet sometimes at the end of each limb. In centre of cross a small saltire. Around, inscription between two beaded circles.

Lettering: Epigraphical Table, Series VII.

Size: .7-85 inch.

Hawkins, 270.

PL. XLIX-LII

The inner circle on the obverse is sometimes omitted, nos. 1, 17, 54, 69, 83, 98, 142 (PL XLIX. 1, 8; L. 11, 16; LI. 3, 11).

Some coins have an annulet on the king's r. shoulder, PL XLIX. 1 (no. 1); LII. 7 (W. C. Wells collection).

A variety of the reverse type has large pellets in the centre and at the end of two limbs of the cross, PL L. 8 (P. W. P. Carlyon-Britton collection). For other varieties of this type see below, 'Irregular Issues'.

The stylo of coins of this type varies considerably, and rough work is not infrequent (cf. PL XLIX. 15; LI. 4). Exceptionally coarse pieces such as the Hereford coin figured on PL L. 5 (T. Bliss collection) and those of uncertain mints on PL LII. 15, 16 are perhaps contemporary imitations or forgeries.

INDEX II

MONEYERS

Varieties of spelling that seem to indicate the same name are indexed together under one name, which is not, however in every case the most correct form, and references to this name are given under the varieties. The -wi and -wine names which occur at the same mint are indexed together or connected by cross reference (see p. clvi). Names of moneyers and mints in italics denote incorrect or doubtful readings and attributions.
